OUR MEETING.

Action of the Employees of "The Critic" Upon the De-mise of Mr. J. C. Miller.

The death vesterday of Mr. J. Carpon ter Miller was learned with profound re gret by the employees of THE DAILY CERTIC, who, from long and pleasant as sociation, had become devotedly attached to him. Words fall to convey the full meaning of their sorrow, and in his own way accepted the visitation of Providence with due submissiveness. To each, Mr. Miller was a warm and generous friend, always ready to advise and assist and never unwilling to share with them in common, troubles or annoyances likely to arise in the cours of private or business affairs. For years they had worked together seemingly more of a happy family and the sad af-fliction struck deep into their hearts. As a tribute to his memory and mark of true affection, the employees held Flord's Opera House,—It was a mass of upturned smilling faces that greeted the members of Manager Ford's company when the curtain rolled up last night on the first act of "Fun on the Pacific," and the inaugural performance of the season. It was an audience of intelligence, and contained many well known people of criti-cal ideas. Critics were out of their element last night, though the very merry and sparkling performance worked smoothly and was as near perfection as could be. From petite Lillie Parsloe, to comical George Denham, the talent of the company was brought out in full strength A delegation of citizens waited upon the Commissioners yesterday and asked that more time be allowed for the issue of Frank Cushman, who in one act was spokesman at the conference his superior voice, so well suited to the ay. The Commissioners promcontinual applause. The other members of the company, except the impersonator of the Chinaman, were good, and (the the performance went off successfully Matinees to-morrow and Saturday.
